

Protesters clash at 'rally for free speech'

■ BY STEVE LEBLANC
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — Thousands of demonstrators chanting anti-Nazi slogans converged Saturday on downtown Boston in a boisterous repudiation of white nationalism, dwarfing a small group of conservatives who cut short their planned "free speech rally" a week after a gathering of hate groups led to bloodshed in Virginia.

Counterprotesters marched through the city to historic Boston Common, where many gathered near a bandstand abandoned early by conservatives who had planned to deliver a series of speeches. Police vans later escorted the conservatives out of the area, and angry counterprotesters scuffled with armed officers trying to maintain order.

Members of the Black Lives Matter movement later protested on the Common, where a Confederate flag was burned and protesters pounded on the sides of a police vehicle.

What is the game of politics really all about "It is said that we hang the petty thieves and appoint the great ones to public office." So goes the thought of many citizens when they think of politicians. I promise you that it is a much more complex game than most people will ever understand. It needs to change from the political right and left to what's right and what's wrong.

Have you ever wondered what goes through a person's mind when they decide to run for public office? It very well could be a life-altering experience and most certainly will change the way you see yourself and society forever. They say the best way to really find out who your friends are is when you lose. Who steps up with support and encouragement and who instantly changes their colors to support the winner with both money and friendship? It's an interesting lesson on society and relationships.

We are now engaged in an election for the U.S. Congress and other city positions. Sel-dom do voters really spend the time to study the candidates and their stands on issues but stumble into the voting booth hoping that Uncle Max gave them the right information on who they should vote for. Most people believe that politics is the art of looking for trouble, finding it whether it exists or not, diagnosing it incorrectly, and applying the wrong remedy.

Running for public office can be brutal, and being elected can be sheer terror. Once a person finds out how many people hate them because they belong to a different party and therefore can't be any good — and they are labeled a "politician" and therefore are instantly suspect for their motives behind seeking public office — the personal panic begins. They begin to question, "Who really wants me to run and will they support me financially or in volunteering?" Some candidates have already found out the answer to those questions but the finals are still ahead. You've got to wonder why anyone steps into the public arena and agrees to run. I applaud anyone who dares enter the arena of public judgment.

The judgment that takes place once you have made the choice to run will only be superseded by being elected and having the daily barrage of critics second guessing what you will do and have done.

Let's look at what goes through the mind of a candidate. The first thing to ask yourself is, "Why am I running?" Is it the ultimate ego trip, a celebration of self-interest with exciting rallies, headlines, bright lights and adoring followers? Personally, I think that's a lot of baloney. In reality, a campaign becomes a lonely, ego-shattering affair, devastating to family life and finances. Far more candidates lose than win.

The next question should be, "Do I have a plan of action should I be elected, and is it a better plan than others may have? Am I qualified for the position and will my employer support me in the endeavor?"

The worst part of running is fundraising, especially for a candidate in a difficult battle. Many candidates have confided that calling people to ask for money can be a humiliating, degrading thing. Some candidates get in the middle of the race, consider the state of the campaign, the neglect of family and profession and then ask, "What in the world am I doing here?"

Candidates must evaluate their own personalities to determine if they have the mental toughness to take criticism without falling apart. It's wrenching to be criticized publicly, especially when the campaign becomes mean and personal. You have to deal with the press, the letters to the editor, e-mail campaigns, timed debates with no time to defend or fully explain your position or respond to false accusations about what others think they know about where you stand on issues.

Can you financially support this venture and do you have any major skeletons in your closet? Have you done anything that is considered unethical, such as DUI, drugs or bankruptcy, or have you engaged in questionable business practices? Are you prepared to have yourself and your family placed in a glass house for all to judge as public figures? What are the issues and how will you solve those problems? Will you raise taxes or cut government?

Most of the general schizophrenic signals you will receive from the general public will be to cut taxes and increase expenditures, and do it in a no-nonsense manner so we the people have pride and respect in the public will expect government to solve all its problems and spend no money doing it. I respect anyone who has stepped into this arena of public service for the right reason.

It is said that America is great because of what government did, America is great because of what free people in America had the chance and the incentive and the opportunity and the freedom to do for them. It all starts with someone willing to serve as a public willing to get out a vote after serious study of issues and candidates.

"Mankind will never see an end of trouble until lovers of wisdom come to hold political power, or the holders of power become lovers of wisdom." — Plato

Utah Petition

Federal Petition

The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the Members of the several State Legislatures, and all executive and judicial Officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by Oath or Affirmation, to support this Constitution
--the Constitution of the United States, Article VI

It is impossible to be bound by Oath without a penalty for breaking the Oath, just as it is impossible to be bound by a contract or law without a penalty for breaking the law or Contract.

In order to become more compliant with Article VI of the Constitution of the United States, the supreme law of the land, it is proposed that we use the following wording for the Oath of Office required of all Utah state legislators and all Utah state judicial officers:

I do solemnly swear (or affirm) under penalties of perjury misdemeanors, high crimes and treason, that I will promote, preserve, protect and defend the supreme law of the land, this Constitution of the United States against all enemies or opposers, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that I will support the Utah Constitution and Utah laws in pursuance to the Constitution of the United States and will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter, so help me God."

Utah Oath of Office Amendment (2016)

The Utah Oath of Office Amendment, HJR 8 is on the November 8, 2016 ballot in Utah as a legislatively referred constitutional amendment. The measure, upon voter approval, would make minor changes to the oath of office that each elected and appointed state official must take and subscribe to before entering into his or her respective office.

The current oath of office reads: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this State, and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity."

The proposed oath of office, which would be enacted with voter approval of HJR 8, reads: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey, and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Utah, and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity."

The amendment changing the oath was proposed by Rep. Kraig Powell (R-54). He explained the proposed changes, saying, "Please remember that the point of the bill was that the word 'Utah' is not currently in the oath of office."^[2]
